

Tyler Aston Week 9 Reflection

SCORE 90/100

My score is based on my 5 20-point question responses, minus 10 points because I am a day late.

20 pts Questions Cognitive: (Wow, I learn?... Ok that is deep!)

Why is this week's topic important for teamwork?

It is important that when you working in a team that your teammates know they can trust you. Trust is easily lost and if we are always honest in a professional way there should be nothing that your teammates can have reservations about. Having integrity also is important to have some sort of influence in the team.

How do plan on contributing to the team, besides completing your tasks?

By practicing and following the principles taught in the preparation readings in my everyday life I will be able to contribute to the team in building trust among my peers. If people know I am a good person and won't compromise my integrity for anything that I am someone you want on your side.

How does your experience relate to other experiences you have had?

I have had many times in my life where I was trusted with important information and projects to get done. I have stood by my word many times and as a result led to many great references to be called on when applying for a job and I have gotten on of my favorite jobs because my job reference from my last job was so good. I left my previous job with plenty of notice and no commitments left unfulfilled.

Tell me about what you taught someone? And what did they learn, that they didn't know before?

I shared the talk from Elder Maynes "earning the Trust of the Lord and Your Family" and was able to talk to my roommates and fiancé about it. I have also related it to a previous talk I remember but not by who, in it the speaker mentions how him and his executive colleagues were buying the days newspaper and one of them opened the newspaper kiosk with a quarter and handed out multiple newspapers. The speaker said he wouldn't take one and was asked why and he said his integrity wasn't worth 25 cents. That talk has also stuck with me and I always use it as a valuable lesson in teaching integrity and trust.

If this was a religion class, how would you relate this week's topic to the gospel?

Elder Maynes talk is the best example relating the trust and honesty we need to have with the Lord. We need to have integrity and keep the covenants we make with God. If we fail to do this over and over again for the same reasons He will not be able to trust again until we can show Him that we have truly repented and made changes in our life to make sure we are better equipped to fulfill our side of the covenant.
